

Dr. Pahwa received his medical degree at Seth G.S. Medical College, University of Bombay, India. He completed an internship in medicine at Baylor College of Medicine followed by a residency in Neurology at Baylor College of Medicine, Houston, Texas. He then completed a one year fellowship in movement disorders at the University of Kansas Medical Center. Dr. Pahwa joined the faculty of the Department of Neurology as an Instructor in 1992 and is currently Professor of Neurology. He is Director of the Parkinson's Disease and Movement Disorder Center at the University of Kansas Medical Center. He was named the inaugural recipient of the Laverne and Joyce Rider Professorship. Dr. Pahwa is a Diplomate of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Pahwa's research interests are centered around the various aspects of Parkinson's disease and essential tremor. He is currently involved in studies related to medical and surgical forms of therapies for Parkinson's disease and essential tremor. Dr. Pahwa has published more than 250 peer-reviewed articles, chapters and abstracts in leading neurology and movement disorder journals. He has conducted more than 75 clinical trials related to Parkinson's disease and other movement disorders. He is the co-editor of "Handbook of Parkinson's Disease", 3rd and 4th editions; "Therapy of Parkinson's Disease", 3rd edition; and "Handbook of Essential Tremor and other Tremor Disorders". He is co-author of the book "Parkinson's Disease: Questions and Answers", 4th edition. He is the Co-Editor in Chief of the International Journal of Neuroscience.